WILD FOR LIFE FOUNDATION

Celebrating 10 Years & Looking Forward

Thank you to all of the compassionate individuals, companies and foundations who give to the animals. Thank you for caring. Thank you for believing. Thank you for being a part of this amazing work. The animals are forever grateful. We are forever grateful.

Here are just a few of the things that we accomplished together from July 2008 through December 2018.

A Message from the President

Founded in July 2008, Wild for Life Foundation (WFLF) set out to break the cycle of animal cruelty by cultivating action and inspiring social change. I am in awe of the achievements we have made as an organization. It's an honor to share and be supported in the important progress and accomplishments that we've made together in that time - from being recognized as a leading organization in the animal protection community, to national acclaim and multiple international awards for services and programming, to powerful animal protection initiatives, for becoming an influential voice amongst policymakers, and fellow practitioners; WFLF's work indeed continues to make a difference for at-risk animals every single day.

Over the years WFLF has brought landmark attention, inspired growing support and positive change to benefit a variety animal species with a focus on equines, both nationally and internationally through multimedia educational programming, broadcast media, and documentaries. We have collaborated with many of the world's finest and most devoted animal welfare practitioners in a kindred movement to end animal cruelty.

I am also truly humbled to have the honor of sharing WFLF's boots-on-the-ground achievements in saving and aiding hundreds of horses and burros and giving them safe harbor over the years. It just goes to show that we can accomplish a lot when we stand united, even in times of crisis, together, we can save more lives.

We honor the kindred spirit of each and every supporter and the contributions received - whether financial, or goods, services or time. Charity is made possible when the needs of others touch that special place in our hearts and we are moved to sacrifice something dear that belongs to us, for the benefit of others. This is the essence of charity and the core principle which drives WFLF and all that we do.

As we reflect and celebrate all that we have achieved together we remain mindful of the mission at hand, and the strength and resilience needed to face the challenges that are yet to come. WFLF is a charity that's been held close to the hearts of its supporters. We rely on the continued good will and generosity of others to carry out our purpose and our lifesaving mission to save, protect and preserve America's wild and domestic horses and burros through rescue, sanctuary and education.

Many of the nation's finest and most devoted equine welfare practitioners have joined together in a united stance through numerous collaborative projects under WFLF. "SAVING AMERICA'S HORSES: A NATION BETRAYED" is one such project. This landmark award winning educational documentary unpacks a multi-layered conspiracy fueled by a parade of misinformation as it cuts through to the truth, and tells the story of how one of America's most treasured and iconic species struggles to survive in a world where two camps claim to be saving them; one that actually does, and the other that is instead found to be brutally exploiting them, eliminating them and driving them to extinction. SAVING AMERICA'S HORSES spotlights the dangerous expulsion of America's equines from public lands, the predatory exploits of commercialized slaughter, the insidious suffering of these animals, the imminent and urgent health risks to humans, and the environmental impact caused by these sordid practices. This collaborative work brings exposure to the corrupt distribution of disinformation about horse slaughter and the removal of America's wild horses, and reveals how the public has been misled by special interest groups that run over the laws that are supposed to protect the horses, people and the environment.

Although not always obvious to the public, over 100,000 horses and burros are shipped across federal borders each year where they are butchered alive for their meat. As the director of Saving America's Horses, I can tell you that each year, countless wild equines endure the same torturous fate after being brutally captured, stockpiled and shipped under false label. And as founder of WFLF's sanctuary and rescue program in Southern California for wild horses and burros, I know firsthand what it takes to manage equines after they've been removed from the wild and subjected to these cruelties.

The innocent souls who come to harm as a result of these practices often-times require support for both physical and emotional wounds, and WFLF is determined to reach out on behalf of every individual member of America's equine population, be they wild, or domestic, and without limitation to age, gender, handicap, discipline or lack of training.

While many seasoned animal welfare advocates and practitioners understand that overcoming controversy is something we must face, especially when working in the equine community where the stakes are extremely high; far fewer people recognize the disinformation campaigns that drive these issues and how information is manipulated by special interests that have infiltrated the pro-horse movement under false pretenses. We've witnessed unfriendly attempts to undermine the integrity of this important mission through various disinformation campaigns which have sadly hit home for a growing number of reputable pro-horse advocates and renowned equine welfare practitioners within the anti-slaughter movement. We know the remarkable courage, strength and sacrifice it takes to stand against the turbulent tide which threatens the future of these sacred beings, to whom we are all connected.

Over the years we have shared the real-life stories of those supported and the impact that fundraising has had on their lives. Although we know we cannot save them all; we believe that every life matters. And we will keep fighting for each individual life with the goal to save as many as possible.

It is important as we look to the future that we embrace the responsibility of funding this crucial lifesaving cause - to inspire giving with integrity and compassion. We realize that the cost for delivering these programs will only go up in the coming years. And while WFLF has experienced a steady increase in demand for support which has been complimented by funding to meet the costs in previous years, sustaining the required funding during times of crisis has proven difficult. However, we simply cannot afford to fall short of our goals, as we are determined to deliver on our promise to those who have come to us for support.

Over the last 18 months, WFLF has reviewed its income streams, and has continued refreshing our approach and position to resolve the challenge of cost versus income. We realize that one of our key responsibilities is to maintain the trust and confidence of the public to demonstrate our commitment to carrying out our mission, and we continue to accomplish this with integrity, objectivity and transparency.

In July 2018, Wild For Life Foundation celebrated its 10th anniversary of success in awarding winning charitable services and impeccable compliance with all applicable laws, regulations and operational policies. And over the last year we have taken considerable steps to demonstrate the board's commitment to maintaining our high principles of integrity, objectivity and transparency. WFLF's BOD has enacted a zero tolerance policy to fraud and corruption, and has in put into place a robust control system designed to prevent, detect and correct any acts of fraud and their impact, should they occur. The BOD has continued to review its annual operations and is fully satisfied that WFLF's work is carried out wholly to advance WFLF charitable purpose.

WFLF ensures that donated funds are used exclusively for its exempt purposes. We believe it is only through transparency and accountability that we can stay on mission and on schedule to achieve it.

The ANIMALS are the BENEFICIARIES of our mission - WFLF exists to serve their need for protection and care.

On average 97% of each dollar raised goes directly to the benefit of animals in need, and they appreciate your continued support.

Wild For Life Foundation is committed to providing accurate information to the public and this past year, WFLF's leadership team laid out an ambitious ProActive Crisis Communications plan as part of an Emergency Response policy. This is a plan and goal toward increased safeguards to protect the organization, the animals and our mission from conflicts of interest, adversary propaganda, conjecture and the dissemination of inaccurate information. We understand that this plan will require the work of far more than just one organization. It requires the kind of collaboration that underscores our Mission and the Saving America's Horses Initiative, and the kind of dedication that has helped to repeatedly defund the slaughter of horses for human consumption in the U.S. Every day, countless names, faces, and lives are lost to inhumane and needless killing that can be prevented; this killing additionally places human lives at risk, contributes to toxic waste and global warming, and it is our mission to see that this becomes a thing of the past.

This is the path we've always been on. And it is my great privilege to be on it with you, and so many other like-minded people and partners. Thank you for being a part of this lifesaving mission. Together, we will save more lives.
Katia Louise, President, Wild For Life Foundation

A Message from the CFO

Five years into my involvement as a dedicated volunteer for the Wild For Life Foundation, my role has evolved from Animal Rescuer and Caregiver to serving on the Board as a director and officer. I am in awe of how far we have come as an organization. I am also truly excited by what our future holds. We have grown so much since our founding, and are still developing in ways I could not have imagined just a few years ago.

One of my primary focuses has been to raise awareness about animal welfare and to provide lifesaving support to at-risk animals in need. I'm proud of the boots-on-the-ground time I spend as a charity volunteer working in the field, connecting one-on-one with the animals, being part of the lifesaving work that Wild For Life Foundation does year after year. I am inspired by the devotion and integrity of this organization, and the loving spirit and reverence for individual life which is honored in every aspect of what we do from the individual connection we make with each and every animal that arrives to our doors, to the massive documentation exposing the fraudulent practices by agencies, corporations and others involved with the slaughter of equines.

Demand for our educational program continues to grow while the number of horses and burros needing our care and expertise continues to rise. My objective is to keep up with these demands, which means more robust fundraising. Your continued trust in the leadership of our charity and our dedication to WFLF's mission could not be more appreciated. I hope and pray that you will join us through supporting this next phase of our amazing journey.

In the meantime, WFLF will continue to care and provide for the wild and domestic horses and burros who are the beneficiaries of our charity. Currently, we have more than two dozen residents, plus a number of equines in our foster program, and we need your continued support to give them the care they need.

I would like to thank all of our donors, sponsors, volunteers, adopter, fosters and anyone who has referred someone to us or spoken positive about WFLF. Without you, we could not have helped so many animals.

Together can save more lives.
Jeanne Sullivan, CFO
Wild For life Foundation

Notes from our benefactors

It is a moral responsibility for us to insure that those rescues with the kind of integrity and commitment as displayed by the Wild For Life Foundation, remain vital, intact, and able to care for every animal who enters their gates. If everyone had the compassion and tenacious will exhibited by the Wild For Life Foundation, we would never have to worry with our tears about these beloved companions who have been greater than the wings of our souls; they are the very definition of our indomitable spirit as a nation and I salute Ms. Louise and her associates for their tireless efforts. - Kimme Black

The work that Wild for Life Foundation does on the behalf of horses and humanity is beyond honorable ---it is sacred! We witnessed firsthand and were impressed with the care, commitment and compassion with which these rescued slaughter-bound Mustangs, end-of-the line Navajo ponies and other precious domestic equines now enjoy. Being with these blessed horses is humbling...and being able to help them is an honor. - Jacqueline Osborn

From Advisory Board Member, Craig C. Downer

I am a member in good standing of the International Saving America's Horse Coalition. I am a former member of the BOD. My current affiliation as an Advisory Board Member for the Wild For Life Foundation (WFLF) and its Saving America's Horse Coalition is from 2009 to the present. Several times I have come from my home in northern Nevada to southern California to take part in major film showings, special events for WFLF, and to visit the various sanctuaries where WFLF's rescue need horses and burros reside. The Wild For Life Foundation has been and remains true and steadfast to the cause of standing up for and when necessary coming to the aid of both wild and domestic horses and burros. They have really walked the talk and have been totally dedicated to helping many unfairly victimized horses and burros. Also the film of Katia Louise: Saving America's Horses: A Nation Betrayed is a thorough-going and professional documentary that brings so much that is wrong to light while at the same time presenting solutions to this crisis... which is ultimately one of the conscience, or lack thereof by hardened hearts and minds concerning the wonderful horses and burros. The example of Katia and her husband Mario and other workers with WFLF is one to be emulated and if more would do so the situation would really start to turn around for these highly evolved and intelligent animals.

Together - We are Their Voice, and They Need to be Heard

From Vice President and Co-Founder, Jay Coskie

We believe in freedom from cruelty for America's horses and burros, but belief alone will not support the thousands of equines who become at-risk, nor will it support their service needs long after they are rescued or enter sanctuary. It remains our vow to meet the increasing cost of providing for the complex needs of those we support through high quality, professional and compassionate charity services. Every member of our all volunteer staff is constantly reminded of the impact that their work has on the outcome in transforming lives. Our objective is to continue safeguarding the best interests of our beneficiaries and continue championing the protection of all equines from cruelty, speaking out for the starved, abused, homeless, imperiled and other at-risk animals.

We are overwhelmingly grateful for the support we receive for all those facing life-threatening circumstances, crisis and illnesses. Without our supporters offering this now and for as long as it is needed, we wouldn't have the ability to deliver on our promise and make a lifesaving difference every day. - Jay Coskie, WFLF Vice President & Co Founder
